

Rituals opens store in the Schultheiss Quartier

Berlin, March 7, 2018 – The international beauty brand Rituals opens a shop in the Schultheiss Quartier in Berlin-Mitte in the summer of 2018. On the ground floor of the shopping centre, the Dutch care product specialist will offer a varied range of facial and body care lines for men and women on 130 sqm: from body creams and peelings to feel-good clothing, room fragrances, candles and teas.

"For the Schultheiss Quartier we have won an attractive beauty and lifestyle brand, Rituals, which offers Berliners everything they need to feel good", says Andreas Kogge, Head of Retail & Investment at the HGHI Group. In addition to rituals, the tenants so far have included H&M, New Yorker, Alnatura, Berliner Kaffeerösterei, Deichmann, dm-drogerie markt, Douglas, Hunkemöller, Kaufland and MediaMarkt.

The Schultheiss Quarter, designed by Max Dudler Architects in Berlin, contributes with its diversity and a modern and unique mix of tenants to the upgrading of the up-and-coming, fast-growing quarter of Moabit in the Berlin-Mitte district. The location is only two kilometres from Berlin's main railway station and is very well connected to public transport by numerous bus and underground lines.
